EXPLANATION

This year's theme was designed in cooperation with our scientific committee and their permanent collaborators.

The topic is current, socially justified, directed towards a wider selection of content related to the basic topic and, we believe, relevant enough for today's (still inflationary) circumstances.

The global economy is going through many trials, including those related to the challenges of energy, social and inflationary crises. We still don't have an answer, what is the depth of this crisis and how far does it reach?

That is why you need to know how to manage the challenges and risks faced by the global economy. That's why we focused on innovative changes that should answer these questions. The proposed contents do not oblige any of you to strictly adhere to the proposed indents, but aim to provoke as many different aspects and methods of analysis as possible, all with the aim of sustaining the global or national economy.
